Our response to coronavirus (COVID-19)

Working together to keep the UK connected

Delivering mobile connectivity through our critical national infrastructure is now even more important, to keep the UK connected during the COVID-19 pandemic. Recognising this, the government has identified telecoms as a vital sector in response to dealing with the coronavirus outbreak.

At Cornerstone, we understand that COVID-19 continues to affect everyone's lives. Our Business Continuity Plans are in place to ensure we address and respond daily to these ever-changing conditions.

To continue providing mobile coverage across the UK, we appreciate the co-operation of those working with us. With your support, we can maintain these valuable services for individuals, businesses, and, more importantly, to the NHS and other critical key workers.

The safeguarding of our employees, customers, landlords, and partners is of paramount importance. Our engineers are authorised key workers under government guidelines. When visiting sites and carrying out works, our engineers will always prioritise the health and safety of the public and colleagues. We have provided guidance and processes to ensure we are practising social distancing and self-isolation where possible.

Despite the unprecedented conditions, we are committed to ensuring we work together with you to deliver the mobile services that are crucial to our communities today.

Thank you for your support in keeping the UK connected.
